It is a very easy-to-use application that will save you time and trouble if you need to copy or cut text from one document to another, for example. What is it good for? KeyMacro is an easy way to automatically copy text from one document to another, be it a web page, a Microsoft Word document or even a Notepad window. The way it works is that you need to choose which documents you want to use for this purpose and then you can use your keyboard to select the text and copy it to your clipboard. KeyMacro can be used in combination with a normal text editor such as Notepad or even with a web browser. However, you need to use the combination of keys that you want to use in order to paste the text you've copied. KeyMacro can also be used to automatically cut text from a document. Of course, you need to know the exact keyboard combination that you want to use. Note that this method is only valid if the document that you are cutting from is single-document-oriented, i.e. it will not work in a multiline text area such as a Microsoft Word document. KeyMacro works with almost all Windows platforms and it is compatible with both 32-bit and 64-bit versions of the operating system.
