Wii U Pro Controller Gets Official Display In a surprise move Nintendo has decided to officially list the Wii U Pro Controller on their website as having an official display, you can see it right here: Which is not a shock since the Nintendo Selects website has it listed as being a Wii U Controller with a gamepad stand. The official listing also takes a jab at the Wii U GamePad and Nintendo 3DS by listing it as being compatible with "all Nintendo 3DS game systems". What do you guys think? So do you think that the Wii U Pro Controller display will be compatible with more than just the GamePad?The Chiefs produced their best performance of the season in a 23-21 win over Baltimore, but it will be largely forgotten by those who watched it in the dimming light of a cold December afternoon. First, let's reflect on how bad the Chiefs were in the first half of the game: They trailed by two touchdowns, 10-0. After the Texans had scored a touchdown on a 4th-and-goal play from the Chiefs' 1-yard line, and Kansas City still hadn't gotten on the board, the Chiefs actually punted their third consecutive offensive series. Fast forward to the end of the game: Jamaal Charles scored two touchdowns, both of them against the Ravens' defense, to give Kansas City a stunning win. We'll get to that in a minute. Here's the play: Now, it's not like Kansas City actually produced a good performance on offense, or anything, on Sunday. They had one second-half offensive series: An incomplete pass on third down. [H/T Pro Football Talk] - - - Kansas City led the league in total defense in 2015. Detroit is coming off a solid defensive performance last week, and they're coming off a bye, so it's fair to expect the Lions to be at their best in this contest. As for the Chiefs, they were without the man with whom they want to combine their talents on defense. The team has had a productive, but not great, season defending the pass. Kansas City had a league-high 35 interceptions (8 picks-for-a-loss), and new free safety Terrell Cox had his best game yet (2 TFLs, 1 INT). So they have the right ingredients for a good pass defense, but: Teams threw downfield a lot against

What's New In Adobe Photoshop CS3?

Shishir Bobde is a man on a mission. This 52-year-old executive director of the Tata Institute of Social Sciences aims to hit the 2020 deadline to get India ready for industrialization. That's why he and his colleagues at the Mumbai-based institute are running workshops, seminars and conferences. He said that mostly youngsters from the private sector are attending these seminars and workshops. "We have been running events since 2006. Today we have about 350 such events and conferences. We plan to conduct around 800 such events in the next four years. During the past three years we have conducted about 100 workshops in 150 cities including Delhi, Bangalore, Guwahati, Jaipur, Kochi, Pune, Hyderabad and Lucknow. Our aim is to influence public policy makers to make them aware about the ideas and concepts of industrialization and about its consequences," said Mr. Bobde. His institute is closely associated with the government's National Manufacturing Competitiveness Council (NAMCC). It plans to hold another workshop on "Labor Practices in Manufacturing: Current status and Future Challenges" in Mumbai on Aug. 20-21. He said that many of the private sector participants in the conference were from the automotive industry. "The sector is exposed to a variety of challenge. The sector needs to be revived and has to be drawn closer to the government. The goal is to present the case for industrialization and for the consequences of industrialization. The participants will be coming from the automotive sector. The aim is to create awareness of how government and industrial stakeholders should think about the challenges faced by the industry," he explained. He added that it was not just a think tank for the government but also a lobby group for the private sector. "We have the opportunity to influence policymakers. After the National Manufacturing Competitiveness Council, another is the National Manufacturing Council. Through their deliberations we have to provide the best evidence for the government to formulate policies," he said. He said that his institute would present the case for industrialization to the ministers, CEOs of state-run companies and CEOs of multinational corporations. "We are trying to get the private sector to understand the need for government support and also to understand the true meaning of industry. The private sector doesn't understand how industry has to be revived. We want to show them that industry is a necessity. We want to tell them that industrialization is an option not an option."
