You'll have a file named "Password.txt" A 12-year-old boy in Pennsylvania is the highest-ranking suspect in a rare kind of bank robbery — so rare that it could only have happened here. The Derry Township police chief and a detective were both shocked by the case. "We've never had a case with an armed gunman that didn't go bad," said Derry Chief Thomas Fitzgerald. "We've had a number of bank robberies, but we've never had a successful one." Derry police Chief Thomas Fitzgerald said the robbery was "absolutely" planned. It happened on June 21. A group of three young males entered the bank, pointed guns at bank employees and demanded money. The robbery in Derry Township Pennsylvania, one of only three bank robberies that have gone successful and been solved.
