In a world where information is the lifeblood of today's companies, every second counts. It's crucial that people spend their time wisely. So, if someone has wasted time over the weekend, that's valuable, right? Meerkat is a messaging app that automatically emails people if their mail servers are available after a set amount of time. An email is sent only after the time that your disk has been left to run out of space. With MEERKAT you'll get important messages about your computer's health in your mailbox as soon as something happens. No need to waste time hunting down your email. It's all right there in your inbox! So, when your PC fills up and you're not sure whether you can move a file on your local drive, you don't need to waste precious time searching for your email. It will be waiting for you. Your mailbox will never be empty. No matter how many emails you get, or if you get more than you care to know, MEERKAT will never stop sending you important messages! Thanks to MEERKAT, you can keep in touch with friends, family or clients without ever using your smartphone or email client. MEERKAT automatically emails out your mailbox if there is enough free space on your disk. Each email is sent with a few specific details, including the name of the recipient and the amount of available storage space on your disk. Customize the e-mails you receive. The most useful characteristic of MEERKAT is the time between each email. You can decide what kind of notifications to receive. Take a look at the functions of MEERKAT and see for yourself how useful it is. Key features of MEERKAT: - Your messages will be sent when your disk runs out of space. - The message gets sent only when the mail server is available. - You can set the amount of storage space and the amount of time you'll want to wait before sending the message. - You can set a nickname for the recipient so that you can send to people by their nicknames instead of always sending to the same email address. - You can also write notes to your recipients, to offer clarification or just for fun. - You can use to only send messages to people who have a certain address in their contacts list. - You can also use to send reminders

What's New in the Meerkat?

Meerkat is a disk analyzer, which shows you the amount of space left and the current size of all your partitions, along with the amount of free space available. It lets you know whenever one of these partitions reaches a certain size. Meerkat is designed to allow you to access your disk from anywhere, and it does that by syncing data between multiple operating systems and devices. Meerkat provides a cool dashboard that shows you important data about the status of all of your partitions, and you can get notifications as soon as the free space reaches a certain milestone. Features: Mail Notification – Meerkat monitors the size of your partitions, and you'll receive a notification when any of them reaches a certain threshold. You can choose to send the notification by email, or you can also log into the Meerkat Dashboard and check the status yourself. Custom notifications – When you are getting notifications for multiple partitions, you'll be able to choose which of the partitions you want to receive notifications for, so you can choose to receive notifications only for partitions that contain critical data. Disk monitoring – Meerkat monitors the space available on all of your partitions, including Windows, OS X, iOS, Android, and Linux. Disk capacity calculations – When you add up all of the individual disk capacity columns, Meerkat will calculate the total storage available. Network monitoring – Meerkat not only monitors the individual partitions available on your computer, but also monitors the network connections that your computer has to other computers. Disk partition analysis – What is the partition type? You can specify whether you want to see the partition labels or if you want to see the file size. You can also add a list of computers that your partition can be shared with. File size analysis – What's the size of the files that are on my partition? You can get more information about the files that are stored on your partitions, including their date of creation, file type and extension, and their size. System monitoring – What else is Meerkat doing on your computer? You can see how much memory is being used, as well as see all of the current running processes. You can also view the firewall and antivirus status, as well as see the network connections Meerkat is using. Mail configuration – You can specify whether you want to be notified about changes to your email accounts and email servers. IMAP support – You can specify which IMAP account the app should
